Central America isn't the only region where cattle ranching occurs. In Brazil, cattle ranches occupy somewhere around 8.4 million hectares (20.7 million acres), averaging 24,000 hectares (59,300 acres) each, with some as large as 560,000 hectares (1,383,760 acres). You would think that the government would be making a lot of money from these cattle ranches, since the U.S. is such a major

Knowledge Rich Ranching. Author: Allan Nation. Category: Cattle Farming, Ranch Management. Why I recommend this book. This book gets into the business end of running a beef cattle business - commodity cycles, farm finances, record keeping, replacement breeding stock, grazing strategies, farm inheritances, taxes and more. In other words, it dives into the money end of the cattle business. As

Ranching is the practice of raising herds of animals on large tracts of land. Ranchers commonly raise grazing animals such as cattle and sheep. Some ranchers also raise elk, bison, ostriches, emus, and alpacas. The ranching and livestock industry is growing faster than any other agricultural sector in the world. Ranching is common in temperate, dry areas, such as the Pampas region of South
