No Easy Hope

Eric Riordan was once a wealthy man leading a comfortable, easy life. Until one day Gabriel--his oldest friend, a Marine Corps veteran, and a former mercenary--told him how the world was going to end. He did his best to prepare. He thought he was ready for anything. Surviving Auschwitz II-Birkenau was going to take more than prayer, more than luckit was going to take a will to live, a desire to fight and a need keep a promise. Rifcha and her family were living normal, happy lives. There was school, work, family dinners, outings and vacations. That was until 1938 when the first bit of turmoil started to hit their village located in the Sub-Carpathian mountains - anti-Semitism started running rampant like a disease. It began taking ahold of everyone around them. Those who were once friends now became vicious enemies. Rifcha began to realize that her world was about to crumble. On April 18, 1944, Rifcha and her family were ripped from their home and taken by gunpoint to the Mukacheve Ghetto. The conditions were harsh and virulent but the entire family was alive and together. Their stay in Mukacheve Ghetto was brief. One month later they were loaded into cattle cars and taken to Auschwitz II- Birkenau. Selections were made as soon as the family was pulled from the train. There were no last hugs. No good-byes. As Rifcha's mother and her youngest siblings were being torn away and taken to their final death march, Rifcha's mother made her promise to take care of her sisters, to survive and to make sure she told the world of the atrocities of the Holocaust. At the gates of Auschwitz, Rifcha decided to become someone new. She gave herself a new name: Edita with the meaning: Spoils of war. Over a million people, lost their lives in Auschwitz II - Birkenau, mostly in gas chambers; today, it is the world's largest Jewish graveyard. At the height of the selections, the murders would peak at 10,000 a day. This camp was home to Dr. Josef Mengele. This was where he did all of his medical experiments. Edita fell prey to Dr. Mengele several times, even becoming victim to his knife, which ended up saving her life. When selections were being made for the eviction of Auschwitz-Birkenau II, Edita once again came in front of Mengele and he once again saved her life, but her battle wasn't over. When the Russians started nearing the concentration camps she was moved to the Flossenburg work camp. The living conditions were much better but the risks remained. It was here that she befriended the Hauptsturmführer (the Commander of the camp). He ended up helping both Edita and Joli survive the next six months. In April 1945, Edita was moved again to the Terezin Ghetto. It was here she spent her time waiting for the Russian's, American's, or simply - a miracle. On May 4, 1945 that miracle happened she was Liberated. Edita's father, three brothers and one sister survived the war. They were eventually all reunited. Edita married a Russian soldier and had two daughters. When Edita made her way to America she changed her name again to Edith, meaning happy - because she was happy because despite the worse of circumstances, life goes on and she survived and now she is telling her story, just as she promised her Mother she would.

The purpose of this handbook is to provide aviation enthusiasts with a simple checklist on where to find the surviving retired military aircraft that are preserved in Canada. The majority of the Canadian Warbird Survivors are on display within a great number of well maintained aviation museums, many others are displayed as gate guards near or in a number of Canadian Forces Bases, and a good number are in the hands of private collectors. Many are not listed in any catalogue, but have been found by word of mouth, or personal observation. The museum staffs and volunteer organizations throughout Canada have done a particularly good job of preserving the great variety of Canadian military aircraft, illustrated here. Hopefully, as more aircraft are recovered from their crash sites in the bush and restored, traded or brought back from private owners, they too will be added to the record. The book lists the aircraft alphabetically by manufacturer, number and type. This list is also appended with a brief summary of the aircraft presently on display within the nation and a bit of its history within the Canadian Forces. Canadian Warbirds books are available through the iUniverse.com or the Amazon.com online bookstores.

No Carrot

Surviving component of the Wilhelm Bock collection of fossils (invertebrates, vertebrates, and plants) held at the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia

From Surviving to Thriving

En 1975, du jour au lendemain j'ai été arrachée de ma chère mère à cause de la guerre des Khmers rouges. Cette perte de l'être cher m'a plongée dans une telle souffrance, un tel vide que je me croyais morte vivante. Ce qui me conservait en vie était l'espoir de revoir pour une dernière fois ma mère, vœu qui ne s'est jamais réalisé. Cela m'a pris des années avant de pouvoir lui dire adieu. Le 17 avril 1975, la punition des habitants de Phnom-Penh fut la fin de cette ville telle que nous l'avions connue, par les Khmers rouges, ville que j'aurais aimé connaître davantage. Cette troupe de jeunes paysans armés jusqu'aux dents, des garçons à peine sortis de l'adolescence, a répandu la terreur à travers la ville de Phnom-Penh, avec leur air arrogant et prétentieux, tout comme si le monde entier leur appartenait. Vêtus de leurs habit, ressemblant à des corbeaux, ont fait en sorte que je ne peux voir ces animaux sans aussitôt penser à ces Khmers rouges qui me terrifient encore. Leur bandeau rouge sang sur le front avait de quoi faire frémir jusqu'aux os et leurs yeux affichant leur identité de monstre, de tueur, sans aucune pitié pour leurs semblables. Leurs camps de concentration furent une des épisodes les plus sanglants du XXe siècle. Ces jeunes Khmers rouges, formés pour mépriser les gens de la ville comme si nous étions des criminels dangereux. Ils nous détestaient, nous qui vivions dans les villes, car nous étions la raison de leur pauvreté; nous méprisants, nous devons donc être éliminés. Ce fut à leur tour de nous maltraiter afin de se venger de nous. Ces idées fausses, implantées dans leurs esprits par les chefs Khmers rouges, leur ont permis de nous torturer et de tuer dans aucune pitié et remord. Le 17 avril 1975, les Khmers rouges prennent le pouvoir et entrent à Phnom-Penh. La capitale fut vidée de tous des habitants en moins de 48 heures. Les soldats rouges passèrent de porte en porte pour faire sortir les gens en disant : « Vous ne partez que pour quelques minutes, inutile d'apporter des bagages » Ma famille et moi furent déplacés, tout comme la population Khmer, vers la campagne. À ce moment le Cambodge sombre dans une guerre terrible où les Khmers rouges ont transformé le pays en un vaste camp de concentration, un camp de la mort. Les Khmers rouges ont anéantis les élites en les exterminant. Cet immense génocide a fait disparaître le plus grande partie de la population Cambodgienne. Dans cette foule de déportés j'étais là, impuissante face à cette guerre dans pitié. Le quotidien du camp de la mort était fait de torture, d'humiliation, d'exécutions sommaires, de famine provoquée et de terreur. Longue liste pour mes quatre années passées sous le régime de Pol Pot. J'étais perdue dans cet enfer, dans un face à face constant avec la mort; mais mon heure n'était pas au rendez-vous. Mais plusieurs d'autres n'ont pas eu cette chance car des millions de Khmers ont perdus la vie en moins de quatre années sous ce régime de Pol Pot qui voulait instaurer le communisme rural et la terreur. « Il faut respecter l'anghar. » (sorte de dieu), sinon c'est la mort qui nous attendait et elle était très proche : à notre porte et parfois même attendait avec impatience. Pol Pot : ce nom seul terrifie le peuple khmer. Il vole le pouvoir de Dieu sur la vie et la mort de millions de khmers. Avoir un langage trop « correcte » ou porter des lunettes, font de ces personnes des criminelles qu'il faut éliminer. Ces gens instruits, il vaut mieux les éliminer : vaut mieux éliminer un innocent que de garder un ennemi. Des vrais psychopathes qui prenaient plaisir à torturer les gens afin de se donner de l'importance ou pour se sentir plus vivants. Les slogans des Khmers rouges étaient : « Vous devez vous épier les uns les autres » « Vous garder ne rapporte rien; vous détruire n'est pas une perte! » « Celui qui proteste est un ennemi. S'il s'oppose, il devient un cadavre » « Mieux vaut tuer un innocent que de garder en vie un ennemi » Ces slogans constituaient les lignes de conduite des Khmers rouges et c'est à partir de cela qu'ils nous traitaient.

The Buddha's nirvana marks the end of the life of a great spiritual figure and the beginning of Buddhism as a world religion. Surviving Nirvana is the first book in the English language to examine how this historic moment was represented and received in the visual culture of China, of which the nirvana image has been a part for over 1,500 years. --Mining a selection of well-documented and well-preserved examples from the sixth to twelfth centuries, Sonya Lee offers a reassessment of medieval Chinese Buddhism by focusing on practices of devotion and image-making that were inspired by the Buddha's "complete extinction." The nirvana image, comprised of a reclining Buddha and a mourning audience, was central to defining the local meanings of the nirvana moment in different times and places. The motif's many guises, whether on a stone-carved stele, inside a pagoda crypt, or as a painted mural in a cave temple, were the product of social interactions, religious institutions, and artistic practices prevalent in a given historical context. They were also cogent responses to the fundamental anxiety about the absence of the Buddha and the prospect of one's salvation. By reinventing the nirvana image to address its own needs, each community of patrons, makers, and viewers sought to recast the Buddha's "death" into an allegory of survival that was charged with local pride and contemporary relevance. - Thoroughly researched, this study engages methods and debates from the fields of art history, religion, archaeology, architecture, and East Asian history that are relevant to scholars and students alike. The many examples analyzed in the book offer well-defined local contexts to discuss broader historical and theoretical issues concerning representation, patronage, religion and politics, family values, and vision.--Sonya S. Lee is assistant professor of art history and East Asian languages and cultures at University of Southern California.-- - from real moms and dads who aren't at all afraid to tell it like it is There comes a time in every new mother's life when she finds herself staring at her screaming, smelly "bundle of joy" and wishing someone had told her that her house would reek of vomit, or that she shouldn't buy the cute onesies with a thousand impossible buttons, or that she might cry more than the baby. Best-selling author Dawn Dais, mother of two tiny terrors, is convinced that there is a reason for this lack of preparedness. She believes that a vast conspiracy exists to hide the horrific truth about parenting from doe-eyed expectant mothers who might otherwise abandon their babies in hospitals and run for it. Eschewing the adorableness that oozes out of other parenting books, Dais offers real advice from real moms-along with hilarious anecdotes, clever tips, and the genuine encouragement every mom needs in order to survive the first year of parenthood. The Sh!t No One Tells You is a must-have companion for every new mother's sleepless nights and poop-filled days.
