I don't have many but I love to travel! @haifal1997 : depends both can be used|"who loves to travel" is correct :)|@jamigllee19 both "who loves to travel" and "who loves travelling" are grammatically correct.|@jamigllee19 well, who loves travelling is a better way of putting it but who loves to travel is not incorrect. for example, if I wanted to describe myself I can say both "i love to travel

Goodreads Authors

4. "Travel is like love, mostly because it's a heightened state of awareness, in which we are mindful, receptive, undimmed by familiarity and ready to be transformed. That is why the best trips, like the best love affairs, never really end." - Pico Iyer.
